ADMIRAL LATIMER TO DECLARE NEUTRAL ZONE IN NICARAGUA

Section Reported Captured By Liberals Comes Under Order—Liberals Ready For New Attacks

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Feb. 7.—Admiral Latimer is expected to declare Chinandega, now reported captured by the Liberals, to be a neutral zone, if the Liberals are able to hold the city against the Conservative counter attack, according to reports received here. Admiral Latimer would take this action as necessary to protect communications between the American forces in Managua and Corinto.

The casualties in the fighting at Chinandega are reported to have been heavy.

Liberals headquarters have emphasized the importance of their forces entering Chinandega and state that the strength of the Liberals at Chinandega is evident refutation of earlier Managua reports that the liberals had suffered a heavy defeat at Ramos.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IS RESULT OF QUARREL

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 7.—A double tragedy, believed to have been the result of domestic troubles, was discovered here today when the bodies of Joseph Kaminski, 42, proprietor of a bakery, and his wife, Lucy, 38, were found in adjoining rooms of their home. The woman had been shot through the mouth. Kaminski died with a bullet in his abdomen.

Coroner Hinzler declared it to be his belief that the man had shot his wife and then killed himself.

Mrs. Kaminski planned to file a suit for divorce this week, according to her brother, and it is believed that this led to their final quarrel.

THREE DIE IN TWO FIRES

FIREMEN KILLED IN CHICAGO WHEN WALL OF BUILDING FALLS

Philadelphia Youth Trapped By Blaze: Three Hurt

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—Two firemen are dead and four others are being treated in hospitals today following a disastrous fire which late yesterday razed the Metropolitan building and caused a five-story wall to crash in upon seventeen trapped fire fighters.

The dead are: William Flynn, David Lynch.

The injured: Walter Morgan, Carl M. Pace, John Dempsey, Jesse Seeman.

All of the seventeen entrapped men were first reported killed. Those who escaped death and serious injury were rendered unconscious by smoke and fumes, and had to be carried out on stretchers.

The fire caused an estimated damage of $500,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—Trapped by fire, a youth met death early today and three children who leaped from windows into a life net formed of automobile robes were probably fatally burned.

The father of the victims saved his life by leaping to the sidewalk while the mother crept to safety along a narrow flame-swept ledge.

The first started in the three-story clothing store and dwelling of I. Berg.

The dead: Michael Berg, 20.

The injured: Rose Berg, 7; Harry Berg, 12 and Elizabeth Berg, 14.

All the injured were taken to Hahnemann hospital where Harry is reported to be dying by hospital attendants.

FOUR KILLED BY EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The second trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States under the late President Harding, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, got under way in federal court here today before Judge John C. Knox.

The two defendants are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government "of their fair and unbiased services" through the illegal return of $7,000,000 in seized enemy-alien property to German interests through the Societe Suisse Pour l'Avenir de Metals.

Just before court opened, the two defendants strolled about, shaking hands with newspaper men who had worked on the previous trial, which resulted in a jury disagreement.

Daugherty looked tired and worn, but said the infection in his blind eye, from which he has been suffering, was improved. He was represented by Max D. Steuer, who was his counsel during the first trial, but Colonel Miller has changed his lawyer, now being represented by Aaron Sapiro of Chicago and San Francisco, instead of By Colonel William Rand.

ICE WAVE CLAIMS FOUR; RELIEF HERE

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—A sudden rise in temperature today melted the remaining ice on the streets in the metropolitan area, after four persons were killed and scores injured when successive storms of rain, sleet and snow turned the district into a gigantic ice-skating pond.

In Manhattan the fire department fought eight elevated structure fires caused by short circuits. There were twenty-nine minor fires.

PASSENGERS ESCAPE IN DERAILMENT

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—More than 100 passengers on a fast Chicago, Burlington & Quincy passenger train from St. Paul were shaken up when seven cars left the rails according to a Globe, twenty-one miles west of here today.

No one was seriously hurt as all of the cars remained upright.

Impressive Rites Mark Funeral Of Yoshihito, Late Emperor Of Japan

TOKIO, Feb. 7.—With more than 1,000 priests and ritualists participating in the ceremonies, Yoshihito, late emperor of Japan, who died Christmas morning, was buried tonight with the most impressive and resplendent ceremonies the empire of the rising sun has seen in nearly two decades.

Within the glow of thousands of lanterns and torches the ceremonies began at 6 p. m. (4 a. m. New York time), when the funeral procession left the palace in the heart of Tokio. They will end at dawn tomorrow at Higashi-Asakawa, a country village on the Musashi plain, about thirty miles from Tokio, when the mortal remains of the one hundred and twenty-third occupant of the world's most ancient throne, will be laid to rest in the mausoleum especially built to receive it.

In the vanguard of the procession as it left the imperial palace were the usual representatives of the army, navy and court. But the waiting crowd paid little heed to these. They were awaiting the emperor, a picturesque and huge cart which bore the coffin.

This cart was made chiefly of hinoki, or Japanese cypress, with wheels of zelkova and axles of oak. It was lacquered black, trimmed with gold. Its length was twenty-three feet and it was twelve feet high and twelve feet wide with wheels nearly six feet in diameter.

Three jet black oxen drew the cart and a fourth bullock, held in reserve, paced steadily behind ready to take his place between the shafts should one of his brothers falter. These bullocks were bedecked in regalia almost as elaborate as that worn by the human mourners. Nine herdsmen or

UNIDENTIFIED BABY GIRL IS DISCOVERED ON CREEK BANK

Babe Was In Oyster Bucket—Sheriff And Coroner Probe Circumstances—Blow Fractured Child's Skull

The body of a seven-and-one-half-months' old baby girl, white, believed to have been murdered, was found in an oyster bucket by two boys, while on a fishing excursion, Saturday afternoon. The bucket was found about 100 feet from the banks of Massies' Creek on the J. R. Murdock farm, one and one-half miles off the Tarbox Road and six miles from Xenia.

The baby had been dead three or four days, according to Coroner E. M. Chambliss, who said death was due to a fractured skull. The child, he said, had been struck on the forehead between the eyes with a blunt instrument, lending strength to the murder theory.

The body was discovered by Lester Rhodes and Edward Baldwin, who live on farms off the Columbus pike several miles from the spot where the body was found. The youths reported their discovery to Coroner Chambliss late Saturday afternoon.

Coroner Chambliss, accompanied by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and Special Deputy Sheriff Kenneth C. Barr, visited the spot early Sunday morning and recovered the body. It was brought to the J. Harry Nagley undertaking establishment and was to be buried in Woodland Cemetery Monday afternoon.

There were no clues to identify the baby but Coroner Chambliss expects to make an investigation with

HASTEN ENACTMENT OF CONGRESS BILLS AS FINAL DAY NEARS

Appropriation Acts Given Preference Over New Measures

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—With the death of the sixty-ninth congress less than four weeks away, administration leaders today turned their efforts to speeding up the enactment of six remaining appropriation bills in order to avoid a special session after March 4.

Although jammed calendars await action in both house and senate, the Republican leadership decided to abandon all legislation during the remaining days of the present session, rather than permit the blocking of a single appropriation bill, the enactment of which is necessary to operate the government during the coming fiscal year. As a result, the legislative program for the rest of this session will be composed chiefly by unanimous consent or passage of those bills which can be enacted without protracted debate.

Out of this jam, there were indications the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, the compromise White-Dill radio control act and possibly the McFadden-Pepper banking act will be the chief measures enacted or at least brought to a final vote in both branches of congress. The farm and radio bills will reach a final vote in the senate this week with the banking bill facing a vote early next week and house leaders intimated all three measures

UNIDENTIFIED MURDER VICTIM IN NEW YORK BELIEVED TO BE GANG SQUEALER

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The body of an unidentified man, brutally beaten and strangled, was found today with sash cord and wiring in a burlap bag early today in the street, in front of No. 318 E. Eighth St.

The man's tongue was slit in three places, an indication that he was the victim of a gang feud. Police said that the slitting of the tongue was the punishment meted out to a "squealer."

The murdered man's two feet were tied with sash cord and drawn to the thighs. There were several feet of heavy wiring about his abdomen, and wiring about his neck, which strangled him.

The brutal murder was discovered by Patrolman Dowling while patrolling his beat.

MANY REBELS KILLED IN PORTUGUESE BATTLE; SURRENDER REPORTED; PEACE PLAN REFUSED

LONDON, Feb. 7.—A dispatch from Lisbon today said the Portuguese rebels at Oporto have surrendered. Many of the rebels were killed and hundreds were wounded in the battle between the rebels and the government forces which continued from Friday to Sunday, according to a Lisbon dispatch to the Daily Express.

Following a parley between representatives of the rebels and the minister of war, at which the minister demanded unconditional surrender, which the rebels refused, the minister of war warned all foreign residents and the civil population of Oporto to leave the city. The government troops brought up artillery and bombarded the rebel's trenches, especially in the vicinity of their headquarters at Place Batalha.

Hundreds of casualties and great damage to buildings of the vicinity were reported.

Communications between northern and southern Portugal were still interrupted today, and it was difficult to gauge the full extent of the revolution. The uprising is headed by General Souza Diaz, chief military commander of north Portugal. The chief object of the revolt is the abolition of the dictatorship of General Carmona.

FIRST WOMAN SWIMS CATALINA CHANNEL; TWENTY ONE HOURS

Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, Mother, Third To Conquer Feat

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 7.—Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, of Long Beach, the first woman to swim the 22-mile Catalina channel, was recovering today from chills and exhaustion, the after-effects of her twenty-one hour battle with icy currents.

Mrs. Huddleston, a swimmer of eight months' experience, staggered to shore and collapsed at Point Vicente on the California mainland at 11:14 o'clock Sunday morning.

Friends accompanying her in a boat reported the heroic mother swam the final twenty minutes in a semi-conscious condition. She took off from Isthmus Cove, Catalina Island, at 2:32 p. m. Saturday.

Hoping to win the $15,000 second prize in the recent Wrigley marathon, Mrs. Huddleston stayed in the race nearly nine hours but had to give up when she became nauseated from sea water.

She entered the marathon in the hope of winning enough money to pay for the education of her 11-year old son, her friends revealed.

YEGGS BLOW SAFES IN COLUMBUS STORE

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7.—Police here today were seeking a gang of yeggs who boldly took possession of the Heaton music store, in the heart of the downtown business district Sunday, ransacked the offices, blew open two safes, and escaped with $130, abandoning their efforts to open another safe containing $3,000 in cash, after they had the outer door burst open.

The yeggs entered the building after a night watchman had gone off duty early Sunday morning, and evidently remained in the place more than an hour. Entrance was effected through a side door to the building, which was forced.

NATIONALS WILL BE PROTECTED IN CASE PROPOSAL REFUSED

Joint Action Planned If China Situation Threatens

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The United States stands to take joint action with Great Britain for the protection of foreigners in China, if the Chinese war lords reject the American proposal for eliminating the Shanghai international settlement from the zone of war activities.

This course has been under consideration for some time, it was learned today, although the government still hopes that the various Chinese leaders will provide sufficient guarantees to make joint military intervention by the powers unnecessary.

The high-ranking Shanghai neutrality proposal sent to Chang Tso Lin, Chiang Kai-Shek and Sun Chuang-fang, was couched in diplomatic terms and contained no threat as to what action this country would take in the event of its rejection. It is known, however, that the request was not intended to be an empty gesture.

The only alternative this government has, in the event of rejection, is the landing of troops for the protection of its nationals. This step would be futile, for observers point out, unless all the powers united to make it effective.

CHAIN STORES ARE VICTIMS OF BANDITS

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 7.—Unmasked bandits today held up three chain store managers and a filling station agent in broad daylight and escaped with approximately $300. One of the men, police were told, wore rim shell glasses and had a "funny nose."

N. P. Perkins, A. P. store manager surrendered $65 of the store's money, to a negro bandit as he was opening the store. The man missed $125 hidden under a counter.

J. B. Rankin, uptown filling station agent, gave $32 to two white bandits in a small roadster.

Frank Dixon, Kroger store manager, was forced to give $17 of his own and $70 of the store's money, to two bandits in a small roadster.

Stimulation Great
For Old Age

QUICK WAY TO RENEW
VITALITY

Because it helps to modify the nutritive processes, scientists claim that proper stimulation has a pronounced moderating effect on the breaking down processes in the human body and thus may add ten years to the average life span.

To get real nourishment out of the food you eat is life-giving, and the body-building elements thus created nourish the tissues and strengthen the nerves and vital processes. When there is in-complete nourishment, even though you eat heartily, disintegration of the body cells follows, and we be-come run-down, thin and undu-sive.

A remarkable stimulant- tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wine-glass full before your next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body. A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy. —Adv.

Rheumatism can't

Are you one of those unfortu-nates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

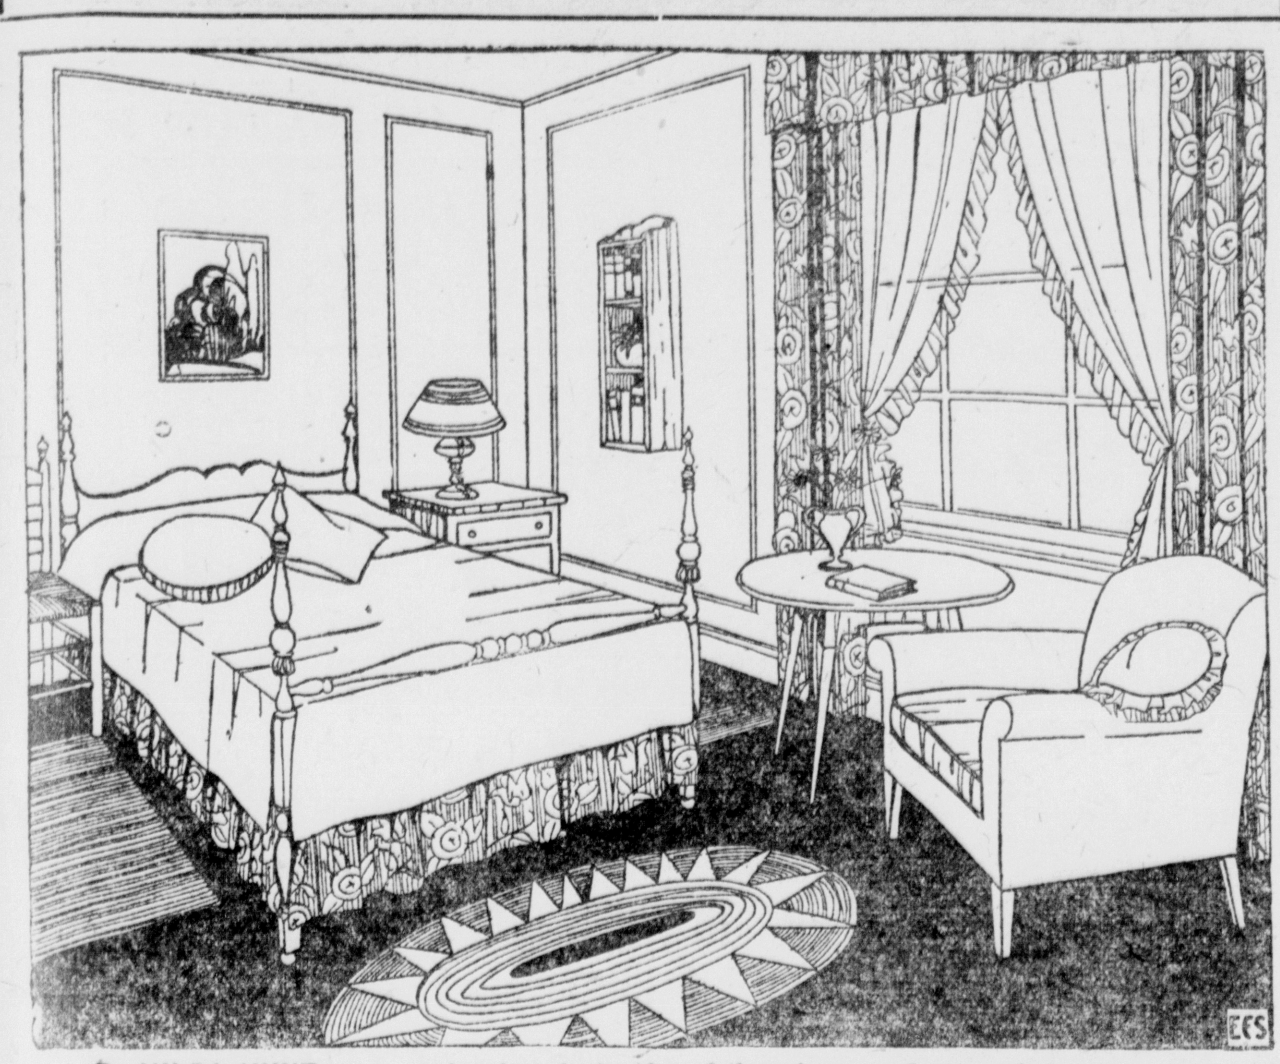

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I also had a break-ing out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S.S.S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Carl C. Camp-bell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

HERE'S ENHANCING BEDROOM DECORATION SCHEME

By HILDA HUNT

Much of the charm associated with the partial view of the deligh-tful bedroom pictured above may be attributed to its utter simplicity and its provision for the comfort and convenience of the occupant. For comfort and convenience are two of the chief principles of interior decoration. Nothing means more to a home.

The draperies and the valance of the counterpane upon the large and roomy bed are in hand block-ed cottons of flowered design. Its soft pastel background of dull blue forming a contrasting link be-tween the paneled walls of the golden yellow.

Against the opposite wall, and out of the picture is the typical chest of drawers over which hangs a detached oval mirror. Lights are placed on both sides of the mirror.

The overstuffed chair at the right is modern while the table be-fore the window is of early Ameri-can design. Note the deep set-back of the chair, which is a type of the so-called Cogswell—roomy and comfortable.

The hanging bookcase is very in-expensive and comes in a dull blue varnished. This, together with the parchment shaded bed lamp afford the acme of comfort and convenience to a guest who likes to read in bed.

The semi-circular hooked rug at the foot of the bed is in a con-ventional design and augmented by the rectangular rugs of braided rugs on either side completes an atmosphere of delightful charm.

TRY THIS SAFE LAXATIVE REM-EDY FOR COUGHS

Colds and constipation are so closely linked that the one condi-tion aggravates the other. Cough remedies that contain chloroform or opiates are harmful and intensify the constipated condition. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is invaluable for coughs and colds as it is free of opiates, is mildly laxative and absolutely reliable for all coughs and throat irritations, hard bronchial coughs, lingering "flu" coughs, bothersome night coughs. Blant to the tender throat of a child, effective for the stub-born coughs of grown persons, Fo-ley's Honey and Tar Compound is a fine dependable family cough rem-edy. # WHAT to WEAR and HOW to WEAR IT

By LUCY CLAIRE
Favorite Fashion Adviser
of the Smart Set

In recent articles I briefly touched upon some of the smart little outfits I observed on youngsters in the south. It seems to me that their clothes are important enough to merit special attention occasionally. There are such adorable things to be found that it seems a real pity not to observe and heed the prevailing modes for these tiny tots. I have divided the styles into five age divisions. Today I am covering the baby through its first year.

I cannot impress upon you too urgently the importance of adhering to the strictest simplicity in all children's clothes. No matter what the material, it is futile to consider anything that will not launder perfectly. And another important point is not to over-bundle small children, because once it has been created, there is created a certain susceptibility that must be catered to throughout life.

The warm little knitted suits, consisting of cap, sweater and leggings, are excellent, for they can't be worked loose, they fit close to the body, and provide double warmth through the waist by generously overlapping. I suggest buying an outfit of this type large enough to allow for possible shrinkage in washing.

At the left I have shown two sweater jackets with little caps to match. Two or three of these sets are convenient to have because they can be used so continuously—either on cool days indoors, or beneath a coat during very cold weather.

Now I want you to observe carefully the dainty little embroidered dress and bib. These are both made of a tissue weight white gingham. Throughout the week I am going to tell you more about gingham and its many attractive patterns, but today I mention only because it is so much better taste to avoid the use of colors for the small baby.

You have probably been using gingham without realizing it, since this is so generally favored because of its durability and excellent qualities for laundering. It may be found in many weights and qualities from a rather sheer to a substantially heavy grade. Just to be doubly sure of getting gingham, I suggest that you specify it by name in your future shopping.

The tiny dress coat, with its smart little shoulder cape and frilled bonnet to match are both made of lightweight white worsted material, trimmed with narrow rows of hemstitching. The cape gives added warmth through the shoulders and beneath the bonnet a small quilted cap should be worn. Tomorrow, I am going to tell you about clothes for the 3-year-old age.

FATHER AND SON INJURED WHEN TRACTION CAR STRIKES AUTO

James Dye, 35, Goes Station and his son, Marion Dye, five years old, are in the Eskey Hospital, with painful but not serious injuries, received when their auto was struck by a Springfield and Xenia interurban car at Goes Station, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The engine of the auto stalled on the car tracks in the village. Mr. Dye told hospital attendants, and before he and his son were able to leave the machine, the traction car struck the vehicle. The little boy's left ear was torn almost entirely off and he received small cuts and bruises. Mr. Dye had two ribs fractured and received cuts about the head. The two were the only occupants of the auto.

FIRST BOOZE DRIVE VICTIM FINED WHEN HE PLEADED GUILTY

Harold Lemons, this city, was fined $200 and costs for giving information as to where intoxicating liquor could be obtained by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Saturday. He had previously pleaded guilty.

Lemons provided bond of $210 and was released upon his agreement to pay both the fine and costs on or before May 7, 1927. Hearings of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Myers, Bellbrook, and Martin Weimer, Cedarville, set for Monday morning and afternoon, were continued by Judge Wright until February 15.

Mrs. Myers is charged with sale of liquor, her husband with illegal possession and Weimer with selling liquor in connection with the network of alleged prohibition law violations in Greene County, being investigated by Prosecutor J. C. Marshall with the aid of state prohibition inspectors.

Seventeen arrests have been made in the "liquor clean-up" but a full came over the week-end and no further arrests were made. Two of the seventeen cases have been disposed of in Probate Court and hearing dates for fifteen others, who pleaded not guilty to various charges of liquor law violation, have been set.

PLEA FAR CAPITAL PUNISHMENT MADE BY BIBLE TEACHER

Large audiences which taxed the capacity of the main auditorium of the Presbyterian Church, heard Dr. A. T. Robertson, nationally known Bible teacher, deliver his first two Bible studies on the "Sermon on the Mount" Sunday.

"Dr. Robertson has a way of putting the matter which is entirely his own personality," a Xenia minister said Monday. "One minute he has his audience smiling and the next second he is profoundly presenting an eternal truth, which sticks in the mind and heart. Full of his subject, he draws fine distinctions in the meaning of the words and extracts truths which apply to modern life. Each item is couched in simple language, modulated by the speaker's soft Southern accent."

In his first address, Dr. Robertson took up the Beatitudes under the subject, "Who is the Happy Man?" pointing out the modern interpretation of the words of Jesus and how they apply today. Each "blessing" was examined and application made, which at times convulsed the audience with its wit but no one missed the truth applied. In the second address the speaker took up "Who is the Righteous Man?" from Matthew 5:13-26. In this he stressed Christ's fulfillment of the ceremonial law. He also made a strong point upon the present-day situation of murder and how Christ would deal with that question. "It is not more laws that we need. It is not more policemen. It is more enforcement of capital punishment, and Jesus did not do away with capital punishment," the speaker declared. "Jesus would begin with the motive for murder, which originates in the heart, in anger, in hatred. So that Christ recommends for the settlement and abatement of the murder situation, the development of more regenerated hearts. New hearts, cleansed hearts."

The third address will be given Monday night in the Presbyterian Church, on "Who is The God Man?" The public is invited.

Dr. Robertson will be at the Hamma Divinity School at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. He addressed a company of ministers from all over the county at the Xenia Ministerial Association meeting Monday morning on "Paul's Advice to Ministers," from First Corinthians, 3:10-16.

BIBLE THOUGHT

HAVE FAITH IN GOD.—And Jesus said unto him, Go thy way; and immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way. Mark 10 : 52.

THE OIL PIRATE

"Upon the new oil horizon of 1927 there loom many new fields in the State of Texas. Within this vast dominion, thousands of new oil wells will be brought in to enrich their fortunate owners; to enrich the fortunate lease owners; to enrich thousands of individuals who had never thought but that luck would stay adverse."

So reads the opening paragraph of an oil stock prospectus, one of the thousands that Uncle Sam's mail men carry daily to lay siege at savings accounts and strong boxes. It paints an enchanting picture of the poor, made rich over night, the fabulous rewards paid in the oil fields for small investments in leases or acreage ownership.

The amazing generosity of these beneficent minded oil stock promoters frequently stays the hand of the callous editor as he moves to cast their "literature" in the waste paper basket. Here are men so imbued with the spirit of brotherly love and neighborly affection, so big-hearted in their desire to do something for their fellow-men, that they offer their own chances for great riches to others rather than take advantage of their opportunities themselves.

This good-heartedness is further emphasized upon reflection that the addresses are usually just a name on a "sucker" list and that there are neither bonds of relationship, friendship or acquaintanceship to cause them to unleash their heart-strings and give forth lucrative information that is promised to "enrich" those taking advantage of the suggestions.

Little more than a year ago the State of Ohio became embroiled in considerable controversy because its "blue-sky" department refused to permit the further promotion of Florida land-stock in this state. But these good angels of the oil fields do not need personal promotion to further their ends.

With a well-thumbed sucker list, a lot of high-sounding printed literature and sufficient postage, they enlist the United States mail service in their campaign of bombarding a gullible public with prospectuses painting pictures of heaven on earth. That there is a gullible public to receive this information and swallow it, "hook, line and sinker" is proven by the fact that the oil pirates continue to function year after year.

What is remarkable about it all is that a federal government department that is supposedly keeping an eagle-eye on the many efforts to mulct the public through the medium of the mails, continues apparently, to wink at the oil pirate's propaganda. The "literature" sent by them through the mails may conform to present postal regulations but the fact remains that it is 99 per cent fake.

How inconsistent! Postal authorities pounce, with both feet, on some small and altogether harmless effort of a legitimate business to conduct an advertising campaign which may in some way be construed as a form of raffle or lottery, notwithstanding the fact that everyone knows just what is offered and what the element of chance is.

While street regulation is being diligently applied to such humble practices, oil gamblers can fleece the poor of their life savings with impunity.

The Theatre

Less than thirty years ago, Thomas Edison, in the face of adverse criticism from well meaning friends, invested $24,000 in the process of inventing the motion picture. In 1926, the American motion picture investment was estimated at two billion dollars. This indicates the stupendous strides made by the motion picture industry which is now conceded to be the fourth largest in the country.

The motion picture theatre in Ohio was born in Cleveland about twenty-five years ago, the exhibition being given in a small store room in which had been placed less than 200 camp stools for the better convenience of the patrons who were compelled to bear with a twenty minutes flickering show, for which they had paid their nickels at the box office. Today, one thousand theatres throughout the state show motion pictures. These one thousand theatres contain over 400,000 seats and represent an investment of over $100,000,000 in land, buildings and equipment. An average of over five million men, women and children who pay in excess of $1,000,000 in admissions, are entertained weekly in these theatres.

At the present time, millions of dollars are being expended throughout the state in the construction of modern motion picture theatres with capacities ranging up to 4,000 seats. This program of construction will, of course, have a tendency to eliminate the small antiquated houses, so that in the final analysis there will be no excess of seats. To enhance the value of the motion picture as an entertainment medium, there has recently been perfected a marvellous piece of mechanism known as the "Vitaphone," which synchronizes the reproduction of sound with the reproduction of action, and will make available, on a broad scale, the music of the greatest symphony orchestras and the vocal entertainment of the most popular stars of the operatic concert and musical comedy fields. The first Vitaphone installation was recently completed in a Columbus theatre.

A long-handled dust-pan works as well as a short-handed one and saves many backaches.

The Lone Oarsman

Keeping Healthy by Dr. A.F. Currier

THE CRUSADE AGAINST CANCER

If cancer can be cured by publicity, it is getting it in large portions these days, chiefly through the diligence of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, which is making enthusiastic efforts to raise $1,000,000 as an educational endowment. The work is going on merrily and one of the recent converts to the scheme, W. L. Saunders, offers $50,000 to anybody who within three years will discover and prove what is the real cause of cancer. He offers $50,000 to anybody who will, within the same period, offer an effective cure for cancer.

No doubt there will be plenty of bidders for both prizes, for not a year goes by that somebody does not proclaim to the world that he has discovered the cause of cancer, while somebody else proclaims just as loudly that he has found an infallible cure for it. I have seen these proposals come and go for many years, for I was surgeon in a cancer hospital for many years, and they all, one after another, presented the same dismal story of failure after a few months of trial.

So far as I have been able to find out the only means which have given us any kind of headway in the treatment of cancer are surgery and radium, and I am not quite sure about radium, though it is probably useful in the superficial, that is, the early cases of some forms of cancer. Dr. George E. Brewer takes the exception to the statement that cancer is a disease, and says it is a collection of diseases. He is gathering knowledge little by little, not only about cancer, but about other diseases, heart diseases, lung diseases, which are even more destructive in point of numbers than cancer. Ever must we remember, as recently stated by Dr. H. C. Taylor, that education of the public is the chief method of lowering the death rate.

MAYOR'S COURT

Henry Cooper, colored, this city, was to be arraigned before Mayor John W. Prugh Saturday afternoon on a charge of intoxication or disorderly conduct following his arrest Friday night by Patrolman Ed Craig.

He denied that it had contained alcohol saying it was empty. The patrolman picked up the broken pieces for possible evidence.

SENATOR PEPPER OBJECT OF SENATE INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—In the first move to unseat Senator George Wharton Pepper (R) of Pennsylvania for his connection with the $3,000,000 Pennsylvania senatorial primary, Senator Blaise (D) of South Carolina Saturday afternoon sought unsuccessfully to get a vote on his resolution calling on the Reed campaign fund committee to render a partial report on the Pepper expenditures.

Blaise was blocked by Vice President Dawes who ruled that Blaise's motion for a vote on his resolution was not a privileged one.

Blaise announced he believes Pepper should be expelled if Smith and Vane are barred as his expenditures ran over $1,000,000.

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

HOW RESPONSIBILITY CHANGES OUR MINDS

FRED KELLY

For an hour or more last night I watched several men playing poker for fairly big stakes. Another bystander, alongside of me, kept whispering comments from time to time about blunders that one player or another was making. Invariably, he seemed disgusted that the players didn't bet more on a good hand.

I judged that Fred Kelly this fellow was a natural klunger who quickly formed strong convictions and had the courage to back them. When, a little later, one player had to go home and this fellow took his place, I was interested to see what would happen.

But, to my surprise, this man proved to be the most conservative of the bunch. He wouldn't stay in unless he had better than openers, and he was easily bluffed. Several times he practically sold his birthplace for a mass of putty.

Yet, come to think of it, his transformation was no greater than almost any of us show when suddenly we find ourselves with responsibilities.

It is almost impossible to be as conservative about risking imaginary money or some other fellow's money as when using our own. Your point of view changes.

In almost every city it occasionally happens that a wild-eyed fellow of supposed radical tendencies gets elected to public office. Then the population grows somewhat alarmed, feeling that there is no telling what crazy things he may do. But rarely does he do anything to cause much excitement. He may feel that a radical experiment might be interesting, but he doesn't wish to be the one to try it, for if it shouldn't be successful, then the blame would be on him.

On the other hand, a conservative man sometimes becomes much less conservative in public office. He learns that his own success will depend on pleasing all kinds of folks. In trying to do this he may discover new points of view and note that they are not so vicious as he thought.

Most of us who hate the boss or the teacher for being too severe would be even worse if we had his job.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

"Something different." That is the cry of the housewife who is forced into daily thought about what to have for the next meal. It's harder sometimes to know what the next meal is going to be than it is to know where it's coming from. Combinations of foods and old favorites in different dress furnish that variety so sought after by the one who plans the menus.

CREAMED DRIED BEEF IN POPOVERS.

One-quarter of a pound of smoked dried beef, one and one-half cups of sweet milk, six tablespoons of flour, one tablespoon of butter. Let the beef stand five minutes in the boiling water. Mix milk and flour and cook for three minutes. Add butter and beef and cook ten minutes. Fill popovers with creamed beef, having first removed a slice from the top of each. Place a dot of butter and a light sprinkling of paprika on the beef.

HAM CROQUETTES

Mix two cups of mashed potatoes with a tablespoon of butter, two egg yolks and some cayenne pepper, beating the mixture until it is smooth and allowing it to cool. To the cup of chopped ham add another egg yolk, heat the mixture a moment and allow it to cool. When both mixtures are cold form into balls, make a hole in each, press in a spoonful of ham, close it up and form for frying. Dip each croquette in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

INDIAN CHEESE

In a buttered baking dish place alternating layers of well-cooked rice seasoned with a teaspoon of curry powder to a quart of rice and grated cheese to approximately one cup. When the dish has been filled two-thirds pour over a cup of cream to which two well-beaten eggs have been added. Bake the whole until the cheese is soft and the egg mixture is soft like a custard. This is nice to serve for a family luncheon dish.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"All women are alike. You can't tell one type from another. If a woman comes up the area steps she is a servant. If she comes out of the front door she is a duchess. Perhaps, though, she is actually only a servant just the same. You simply cannot tell."

"Persons who enjoy the average moving picture have an intelligence rating of about 12 years."

Francis D. Tyson, professor of economics in the University of Pittsburgh.

"Today, instead of making the world safe for democracy we must make our cities safe to live in. To do this we must organize public opinion to overcome anathema crime conditions and the maddening sympathy displayed for the criminal"—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war and member of national crime commission.

"Americans are becoming a race of goats, eating out of cans. . . . Delicatessen stores are giving undertakers more jobs than all the doctors combined. . . . Soft foods make bad teeth and bad teeth mean bad health. Half of the minor and frequently the major ills of man can be traced directly or indirectly to the teeth."—John A. Marshall, professor of pathology, University of California.

JOURNALIST DIES
CINCINNATI, Feb. 7.—Funeral arrangements were to be announced here today for George A. Gowen, 60, well-known local newspaperman and southern Ohio politician. Gowen died here yesterday.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK Feb. 5.—They were swapping memories Old Times' night at the New York Newspaper club, and Ben De Casseras was talking:

"I arrived at Herald square at 2:30 in the morning. I looked up at the owl that James Gordon Bennett had planted all around the tin roof at the Herald Square building as images to illustrate his motto: 'La Nuit Porte Conseil.' (Night brings wisdom—but the printers had another version which I shall not give here.)

"I was a proofreader on the Herald at the time. My desk was situated directly under a certain owl who seemed to be blinking down at me at that particular moment as I stood on the pavement at Thirty-sixth street.

"Through one of those merry kinks in the brain of which all wise thinking laddies know all about, I imagined that this owl's eyes were blinking words to me. I thought it said:

"'You're a gay boy now—but the megrims'll get you yet!'"

"You're a liar, old Owl!" I yelled back. You're no wiser than your gay old master, J. G. B., who lives over the sea in gay France—and so on, as a gay, port-laden covey like me would have it.

"Beat it! You're making too much racket here. Them people over in the Marlborough wants to sleep. Step along!"

"It was a cop with a limber night-stick and a fat gray eye. 'Did I wake you up—what?' I came back at the peeler. And thereupon I gave him a friendly jab in his beer container.

"Over you go! Asleep, eh? It's home!"

How to Achieve Beauty

MASSAGE AS AN AID TO BEAUTY

Fine Points of Massage.
During the week I have taken up massage in a more or less general way. Today I want to call your attention to certain fine points in massage.

You know, of course, that five or ten minutes' massage of the scalp every day or so—better every day if possible—is absolutely essential for a fine glossy head of hair.

But I wonder if you have ever thought, for instance, of massaging the gums of the mouth?

And yet dentists are recommending this as necessary as the brushing and the "flossing" of the teeth, saying that strong white teeth are not possible unless the gums are in a healthy condition, and that massage is essential for keeping them so and for preventing pyorrhea. This massage may be done by a rotary motion of the toothbrush itself, or with the forefingers, and salt is excellent in conjunction with it.

Then again, have you ever thought of massaging the elbows to keep them round and to side-stop that stiffpointed look that lessens the visibility of any short-sleeved frock.

And I wonder how many of you women over thirty-five remember when you are doing your facial massage to run your fingers up and down in front of the ears to erase those ugly lines that thicken up there? Or to apply your feeding cream liberally behind the ears, where the skin gets dry and shriveled? As one woman amusingly expressed it, some women in this behind-the-ear region look like "dried hams."

And as a last test beauty question, have you ever thought of massaging the end of the nose, to keep the nostrils or the tip from thickening. I, myself have discovered, too, that one can ward off a cold in the head by doing what can only be described as "wuzzling" the cartilage of the nose round and round with the thumb and forefinger and blowing it or snorting at the same time. And is there anything more "uglyfying" than a cold in the head?

"How do you get that way thinking HOLLY BERRIES IS MISTLETOE!"

Central Cracks Second Time; Loses To Middies

BIG GYM HANDICAPS XENIA AND WINNERS TAKE EASY VICTORY

Smart Basketball Offered
By Butler County Quintet

By PHIL FRAME

Central High School basketballers, weakened perhaps by the strenuous game with Eaton the night before, hit the toboggan for the second straight time Saturday night, losing to Middletown High by the unexpectedly wide margin of 41 to 17 on the immense Middletown gym floor.

The victory was the eleventh straight for the Middies this season and indicates they will be formidable contenders for state honors this year.

Middletown's margin of superiority was not as great as first glance at the score would indicate, for Coach Kolb's pets were apparently at sea in the big gym. This story should perhaps consist of paragraphs extolling the wonderful play of the winners but without a doubt the final score would have been much closer on a smaller floor.

The Middies started off by registering a commanding lead in the opening minutes before Xenia's tossers could get set and were ahead 13 to 1 at the end of the first quarter. Instead of relinquishing this advantage Lingrel's boys continued to score at will and led at the half 24 to 5.

Central appeared to have endless difficulty in penetrating the tight Middies' defense and the closeness of the guarding it contended with is best illustrated in the fact Xenia scored but one field goal in the first half, this a basket by Captain Smith near the end of the second quarter.

Middletown took things easier in the third period with the game practically won and saved its energy. Taking advantage of this, Central spurred in the third period and narrowed the score to 27 to 12. This third stanza was the high spot in an otherwise poor showing under a handicap. Xenia outscored the Middies 7 to 3 in this chukker.

Sensing danger the Middle attack was unleashed again in the final period and the winners quickly piled up an enormous lead. Though the Purple defense continued a tough problem to the end, the Blue and White never quit trying.

Jordan, strapping Middle center, was the big scoring gun for the winners, dropping in ten baskets, five in each half, for twenty markers. He is a fine shot, has a "quick break" with a powerful drive for the basket. Leckmeyer and Ryan were ideal forwards, each giving a good account of himself. Leckmeyer scored nine points and Ryan eleven. Their defense was built around Captain Schneider, one of the "guardingest" guards we have ever seen.

Captain Smith was the only member of Xenia's squad that played up to his usual standard. "Bull Dog" scored nine points, including five fouls and two fielders. In the last two games the Blue and White leader has had nine chances to score from the foul line and has made every shot good, constituting a modern record, or something.

Huston, Clemans, Marshall and Doak also played hard games but were unfortunate with opportunities to score at hand and many shots were wasted as in the two preceding games. Hopeful of terminating the Middle winning streak and loyal to the team, more than 100 Xenia rooters made the long trip to Middletown, Oh. well, Xenia may have another crack at Middletown in the regional tournament.

Xenia meets the undefeated Bexley High School team at Columbus next Friday night and Kolb's proteges will have another chance to crack a team's long winning streak. It is understood Bexley has not lost a game in two seasons. Lineups:

CENTRAL JUNIORS DEFEAT BOY SCOUTS

Central Junior High School encountered little opposition in the game with the Yellow Springs Scout troop, winning 24 to 6 at Kelly Hall, Antioch College Saturday afternoon.

Coach Patterson started the game with his second team, the quarter ending in the Scouts' favor, 4 to 3. The first team was then inserted into the contest and a 10 to 4 lead was piled up at the half.

The visitors drew away rapidly in the final periods with Bell, Lori, mer and Dinwiddle shooting accurately from all angles. Perfect team work was in evidence during the game, a feature that was lacking in the Leeburg game the preceding evening.

King, subbing at the guard position, made two buckets before he was removed for Bell. He is one of the most promising of the subs.

The Scouts will meet Junior High in a return game here Friday night at Central gym. The contest will be a feature of the Junior High party program and the winners will remain as guests during the party to follow.

Speaker Plays Best at Washington

TRIS SPEAKER IN THE ROLE OF A SENATOR, AND THE WASHINGTON PARK WHERE HE ATTACHED OUT 368 TO FATTEN HIS AVERAGE OF 1926.

Tris Speaker in a Washington uniform should prove one of the stars of final averages when the season of 1927 comes to a close.

It was in the Washington park, while an Indian, that the Gray

Eagle whalloped the horsehide to the far corners. He did his best stick work against the Senators.

In Tris' thirty-eight times at bat in the Washington stadium he registered fourteen hits and scored eleven runs. Out of fourteen hits he turned in four doubles and three triples. He was walked seven times and scored sacrifice hits twice.

Another peculiar turn of fate is that he will play with his old teammate Covaletski, whom Tris traded to Griffith, also Joe Harris who was traded to Boston and then to Washington and at present does the pinch hitting for the Nats.

With Speaker, Washington possesses one of the strongest outfielders in the American league with Sam Rice, Leon Goslin, Speaker will have a great year, inasmuch as he is relieved of his managerial duties. It is reported he is receiving somewhere near the same salary he was getting for managing and playing with the Cleveland Indians.

COBB WILL SIGN WITH EITHER ATHLETICS OR BROWNS, SAID

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Ty Cobb, reaffirmed in integrity by Judge Landis' ruling in the Leonard charges, will sign with either the St. Louis Browns or Philadelphia Athletics within the next few days, according to baseball men assembled here for the annual schedule meeting.

Cobb declined to commit himself on his choice of teams when approached at the baseball writers' dinner last night.

He left the dinner, which was the occasion of one of the greatest omissions ever tendered the noted Georgian, in the company of Eddie Collins, who is Connie Mack's right hand man. This gave rise to the rumor that Cobb already had closed with the Athletics but the "Peach" denied this today.

He is a fine shot, has a "quick break" with a powerful drive for the basket.

Leckmeyer and Ryan were ideal forwards, each giving a good account of himself. Leckmeyer scored nine points and Ryan eleven. Their defense was built around Captain Schneider, one of the "guardingest" guards we have ever seen.

Just AMONG US GIRLS

"AIN'T WE GOT FUN?"

We only live once, so why turn off the phonograph? We don't pass this way twice, so why pass up anything else? Experience is the only thing you can cash in on, even if some of the money would be counterfeit.

Everything begins sooner and lasts longer than it used to—except money.

When a person gives a dance nowadays, he generally gives it on top of the table!

Saturday night used to be the only time that anyone stayed out, and now Sunday morning is the and incidentally they are in for no good.

The older people are shocked at the way the younger generation does nothing but enjoy itself, possibly because they are footing the bills.

No entertainment is formal! The ice box gives you the cold shoulder just as fast as a fashionable club.

It never matters how many people "drop in" because you can always count on about half of them dropping out!

Instead of spending your life with a person, you just spend the Every party is progressive nowadays. It goes as far as the next county.

A girl not only leaves home nowadays; she leaves several homes in the course of an evening.

A little home brew does away with the necessity for entertainment, and it also does away with most of the guests.

All the big captains of industry think it's better to have their names on golf bags than on the office door.

Women have been the last ones to neglect their work for play, but with iceless refrigeration and electric washing machines there's no more time to flit.

It's not only a question of "ain't we got fun?" we're making it last!

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL Beatrice Burton

© JOHNSON FEATURES INC. 1926

She was thinking about him when Lottie Schultz spoke again. "But I'm a great one to break into pictures!" she said with a little laugh. "I was just as movie-mad as any girl who ever lived, once upon a time. I lived on peanut butter and soda crackers in a hall bedroom on Selma street for months, so that I could buy silk stockings and smart clothes to put up a good front. But anyway, I came to my senses finally. I was all packed up to go home when I met Roy. After that, wild horses couldn't have dragged me away from Hollywood."

"Wild horses couldn't draw me away. But it isn't because of any man," Bobbie answered her. "I'm all anxious and eager to get into pictures—I mean to get somewhere in them. But Stella's dying has taken some of my enthusiasm away. I'll probably get it all back—in right now I'm glad to bid away up at your house and teach Jolly her first reader work."

Little Jolly was sitting under a dark green plant on the grassy slope when they drove up to the house. A big police dog lay beside her, and she leaned against it as she cut out paper dolls.

"Hello there, little Jolly!" Bobbie hailed her the minute she got out of the car. She went over to her and dropped down on the grass beside her. She had made up her mind to make this adorable-looking little creature like her right from the start.

But the adorable-looking elfin creature evidently had other plans. She ran her tongue out at Bobbie and made a quite horrible face.

Bobbie pretended to take no notice of this.

"I said 'Hello, Jolly,'" she said, with all the sweetness she could command.

But there was no answering sweetness from Jolly. "Hello, yourself!" she answered snuggly, and snipped the head from a paper doll. Then she wickedly cut off its feet and its arms. Her face, between snipping locks of chestnut hair, was grimacing.

Lottie looked unhappy. "Please be nice to Miss Ransom, Jolly," she called from the steps of the house. "She's going to teach you your letters so that by and by you can go to school with the other little girls."

"I should worry about the other little girls!" retorted Jolly wickedly. She cut the paper doll's arms, and it was two.

"Jolly, please be a sweetheart and mind Miss Ransom," begged Jolly's mother, and then she called to Bobbie: "Better take her up into the nursery, her books are up there."

But to tell Jolly into the nursery was no small job. It was a battle royal. But finally Bobbie won out by simply lifting the kicking mite and carrying her upstairs in her arms.

Jolly, at six and a half, had the heart of a woman of twenty, and she was spoiled besides. She said flatly that she was going to go on cutting out paper dolls, and that she was not going to learn her letters—and that was that!

Finally she began to chant in a sing-song voice: "I will not learn my A, B, C's, so do not try to make me—I am not going to learn them—I am not going to learn them—I do not try to make me!"

Bobbie was as limp as a dish rag when the door opened at noon, and a blond Swedish maid brought in lunch for two on a dainty tray that was all spotless linen and rosebud china.

Then another battle began. Jolly was not going to eat her spinach and carrots. No indeed! She was going to eat her raisin bread and baked potato and that was all.

"I hate spinach and carrots," she told Bobbie with cheerful defiance when Bobbie pleaded with her to eat them. "Nobody can make me eat spinach and carrots. Nobody has ever been able to make me eat them. I just spit them out!"

She was a very bad little girl, and proud of it.

"I see," said Bobbie, who had not taught the first reader room at Leucost school two years for nothing. And she took the raisin bread and the baked potato down stairs to the kitchen and asked the cook to keep them warm.

"You may have them after you've finished your spinach and carrots," she told Jolly, when she went back upstairs.

"You get me my food!" roared Jolly. "Do you hear me?"

"There's your food," Bobbie told her and pointed to the spinach and carrots.

"You get me my food, you dumb-bell!" roared Jolly, and picking up her spoon she threw it at Bobbie in her rage. It struck her on the forehead and cut a little gap in the smooth skin. Instantly blood began to trickle down from it, but that didn't frighten Jolly the least bit.

"You get me my food!" she kept roaring at the top of her voice, while she banged the table-top with her silver spoon with all her might. "You get me my food!"

Finally Bobbie made up her mind to give her up as a bad job. She left her yelling at the top of her voice like an enraged prima donna and ran downstairs to resign her position as Jolly's teacher.

"OH, NO, I WOULDN'T GAMBLE FOR ANYTHING!"

But Lottie was nowhere in sight. The big cool shady rooms were empty, and there wasn't a sound except the buzz of voices from the dining room where the servants were having their lunch.

Presently a white-robed nurse went up the stairs and Bobbie fairly flew out of the house.

Tears of anger and mortification stood in her brown eyes, and through them she made out the white blur of a car that passed her as she reached the bottom—passed her and then came back and stopped under a pepper tree beside her.

"Hello, Bobbie!" The one voice in the world that she wanted to hear, hailed her. "Lost your last friend or your last dollar?"

Bobbie shook her head dolefully. "Neither, Gus. But oh, what a morning! I've put in with that terrible child of Lottie's! Look! See what she did to me!" She pulled off her tiny hat and showed him the cut in her forehead.

Gus laughed. "Come on, stop showing me your death wound, and get in here," he said, opening the door of the cream-colored roadster. "I've got a job for you—a real job."

He told her what the job was as he carried his way out toward Beverly Boulevard and the beach.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"Where are you going?" Bobbie asked as they swept along in the hot yellow sunlight.

She knew very well where they were going. She knew perfectly that Gus was taking her to a lonely hilltop that looked down upon the ocean just beyond Santa Monica, and she didn't want to go there.

It was too lonely for one thing. It was the sort of place where a man and girl could make love for hours without being seen by any one or anything except the wheeling sea-gulls.

For another thing—it was fairly alive with memories, that hilltop. It was there that Gus had told her first that he was in love with her. It was there that he had kissed her many, many times, but hadn't asked her to marry him when he should have.

Not! The hilltop was no place for the two of them, any more. Not now, since they had sworn off all love-making!

"Gus!" she said, "I haven't had anything to eat. I couldn't touch a bite of my lunch up there with that bad kid. Take me down to Chinatown, to that place you've been telling me about for so long."

Instantly, as if he knew why she had said that, Gus began to sulk. And when he sulked he showed it. He showed it by his sudden and heavy frown, and his injured air.

But he turned the big car at the next cross-street and started back toward the heart of the town. "All right!" he said peevishly.

But he reached for her hand after a quarter mile or so of dead silence, and crushed it under his on the seat between them.

"I wanted to be alone, where I could talk to you today," he said sullenly.

Bobbie laughed. "Well, aren't we alone?"

"You know we aren't. All the people and the cars going by!" He waved his arm toward them, then brought his hand quickly back to the wheel.

Bobbie drew her hand from under his. But the touch of him, light and brief as it was, made her glow as if the warmth and the sun shine of the day had penetrated to her very heart. She sighed.

"Don't touch me, Gus," she said.

"Remember that we promised ourselves that we wouldn't do that sort of thing, Old Married Man."

But while she said it, she was longing to put her arms around him and her head on his shoulder. She knew that if they had been alone at that moment, she would have done it, too. She wouldn't have been able to help herself. For, after all, women are not the marble statues that people of another generation believed them to be, but warm, throbbing flesh and blood, longing for the comfort of love and understanding from one another.

They had lunch in a Chinese restaurant on the second floor of an old red brick building in Chinatown. There was no one in it but themselves and the slant-eyed waiter who knew Gus and called him "Long Time."

They had lunch in a Chinese restaurant on the second floor of an old red brick building in Chinatown. There was no one in it but themselves and the slant-eyed waiter who knew Gus and called him "Long Time."

Gus ordered bird's nest soup and egg foo yung and candied fruits for Bobbie, who ate them all.

He touched nothing, but drank hot tea and whisky from a silver flask that he took from his pocket. "Food," he said, looking solemnly at Bobbie's plate, "is the curse of the drinking race."

"Ever bring any other girls here?" Ever bring Monica? Bobbie asked him.

He smiled and didn't answer. "Now, about the business in hand," he began when they had eaten and were sipping hot tea from tiny enameled cups. "Roy's taking his company down to Laguna beach on vacation tomorrow. We're to be gone for two weeks maybe longer—and there's a nice little part for you if you want it. Long Time."

Bobbie shook her head, and a troubled look shadowed her face. "Never, Gus," she answered. "I couldn't do a half mile of sink, sure as anything, and have to be rescued."

"Could you do a quarter of a mile?" She shook her head once more. "I'd be afraid to try it."

Gus flicked off the gray end of his cigar. "Well, come along, anyway, and we'll see what you can do," he said, not looking at her. "We're going to do it down, and we leave about noon tomorrow. I'll take you in my car, if you aren't afraid of being talked about." His tone was sarcastic.

"Laguna Beach?" she repeated when Bobbie told her where she was going. "Well, that's funny. Roy isn't going up until Thursday."

And this was Tuesday.

"You'd better come up here and let me talk to you, Bob," Lottie's gentle voice came over the wire not so gently as usual, "before you make up your mind to go down there with Gus. Hop into a cab and come along."

She hung up.

What did Lottie have to say about the trip to Laguna Beach? She threw the words over her yielding body, she pulled herself away from him.

"See? This is what we do when we're alone!" she said with a little sobbing gasp. "See? We can't trust ourselves!"

She started down the stairs blindly, her hand sliding along the rough painted wall as she went. "No, and I'm not going to Laguna Beach!" She threw the words over her shoulder, and her voice was sharp and filled with the anger she felt. Anger toward herself and him, too.

She started across the littered sidewalk to his car.

REAPPORTIONMENT BILL CHANCES FOR PASSAGE LESSENED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Chances of a reapportionment bill being passed in the sixty-ninth congress were perceptibly lessened today as house leaders disagreed upon a method of procedure.

Rep. Penn (D), chairman of the census committee, which is considering a reapportionment bill, declared that any measure must be based on the 1930 census to win support. He refused to accept the substitute plan proposed by Speaker Longworth and Rep. Wilson of Connecticut, Republican leader, that the last census be used as a basis.

Increasing opposition from agricultural states which would lose under proposed reapportionment methods also gave impetus to a movement to raise the membership of the house. Leaders are ready to forego any attempt at reapportionment rather than run the risk of such a result, it was indicated.

Representatives of California, Michigan and the industrial centers are carrying on an active campaign to force a bill out on the floor, but admit that there is little chance of success.
